SINNER gives its own take on Parisian style. SINNER is the first hotel in the Evok Hotels Collection to lay claim to a lifestyle of offbeat luxury. It demonstrates its intense personality by combining luxury hospitality standards with disruptive identity. SINNER embraces an approach that was, until now, nonexistent at this level of service. Since boldness should never impede elegance. Above all else, SINNER brings to life a full-blown universe, which, along a path strewn with the unexpected, tames vertiginous sensations and a “je ne sais quoi” that others whisper about. SINNER loves risk and embraces its image of a destination on the edge. The result is drawn from alchemy between an impudent vision and a neighbourhood no less so. SINNER is to pique curiosity, to cultivate mystery while resurrecting the taste of forbidden and joyful freedom... SINNER immerses us in the past of this playground, transfigured from a marshland into ecclesiastical residences, before turning into an aristocratic neighbourhood, and today, one of the avant-garde. Behind the unambiguous nod to religion, hinted by the side doors and stained-glass windows, hides something far more suggestive... Once inside, first, there is the shock of a raw designed by Tristan Auer, almost monastic aesthetic, quickly transformed into the tangible pulse of enfolding sensuality, insatiate fantasy. Wood, velvet, tonal depth, and secret life hide behind the apparent sobriety of the entrance. Paris is free here. With glamour, a sense of a party – reignited but away from prying eyes. SINNER unveils the new Parisian chapter: a future homage to the incandescent hours, an aesthetic nod to happy days, the frivolity of the 70s. SINNER does not “see” things the way everyone does, does not do what others do.
